PROJECTS

EtymoloGenius (JavaScript, Webpack, AM Charts)

live | github

A web application that maps a word's etymology and progression to English on a globe

- Leveraged the Oxford English Dictionary API to extract definitions, etymologies, and pronunciations as input data
- Wrote predictive algorithms that parsed through relevant input data, finding languages and other keywords to link entry words to applicable countries
- Utilized AM Charts to track coordinates and animate paths connecting all relevant languages' countries

Restaurant (Ruby, Rails, JavaScript, ReactJS, Redux, Webpack)

live | github

An OpenTable-inspired website allowing users to search restaurants and make mock reservations and reviews

- Created Ruby on Rails database storing arrays of users, restaurants, reservations, and reviews
- Employed ReactJS to organize components and frontend routing
- Stored pictures and other essential data through Amazon Web Service's S3 cloud storage system

Am I The Moral One? (MongoDB, Express.js, ReactJS, Node.js)

live | github

An application allowing users to compare their answers to controversial questions with the general populace

- Used Recharts to render aggregate data with on-click animations, giving users a graphical representation of their results
- Collaborated with classmates to build Mongo database, providing information for Redux state, simplifying database queries
